

Dick Sullivan

Joan and I moved to Savannah from Connecticut in January of 2010 and joined St. Peter's after only one visit shortly thereafter. We were warmly greeted by rector and parishioners alike.

I was confirmed into the Episcopal Church in 2009 and find that the church's precepts and mine are in perfect agreement. I am strengthened by the scripture, liturgy, and music of this faith.

My education included a master's degree in engineering from MIT. My professional career has involved co-managing a small engineering/surveying partnership, which transformed into a land development and property management firm. I have gained experience in balancing expenses with the need to create a professional and friendly workplace, all within the constraints of meeting payroll.

I have also served as an elected Selectman for the town of Branford, CT, where we managed a 100-million-dollar annual budget. We always had a budget surplus.

But a church is much more than a business. It is both a house of God and a social hub that can only exist through the continued support of its members. St. Peter's has come a long way in 35 years. I'd like to help lead it into the next 35.
